

ABSTRACT

A method for enabling a compliance officer to manage the compliance of an enterprise with one or more sets of rules includes providing an enterprise knowledge-base containing information representative of enterprise elements, and providing a rules knowledge-base containing information representative of applicable rules. A rule association is then defined between the applicable rules and the enterprise elements. Compliance scores are then defined to the rule associations. The compliance scores indicate an extent to which the enterprise elements comply with the applicable rules.